SALES CONDUCTED BY MR. FREDERICK A. CHAPMAN

THE Historical Library of James Phinney Baxter truly reflects the man himself. For many years President of the Maine Historical Society—an enthusiastic student of history—he gathered around him the writings of those explorers, historians, and patriots, who had something worth while to say of his Country, his State, and his Vicinity.

Not often do we find a library collected with such a definite purpose as the present one, for with very few exceptions, the volumes which are not distinctly American historical, are correlative, and as such, find their proper niche in this collection.

The library is especially rich in historical material relating to Maine and the other New England States, including a large range of Town Histories with their Genealogical data, so important to the historian and student. Here will be found Rare Tracts of the French and Indian War and Revolutionary periods, including works on Witchcraft, so intimately associated with the early days of Massachusetts.

The earliest printed work of Roger Williams, his "Key into the Language of America," printed in London in 1643, is here, and is one of the rarest books relating to the History of the Indians of New England. Many other unusual works will be found throughout the catalogue, which will shortly enrich the collections of the student, historian, or public library, as they did the man who originally gathered them.

TWO IMPORTANT FRENCH MANUSCRIPTS

328. MANUSCRIPT. Extract of the Answer under date of Oct. 26, 1719, made by M. de Vaudreuil et Bégon, formerly Governor General and Receiver in Canada, to the Memoir of the King, dated May 23 of the same year. 4 pp. folio, with Seal. Copy made at Quebec, 1750.

This Manuscript says that Vaudreuil and Bégon have learned with pleasure the order of his Majesty to his ambassador in England for the proposal and the appointment of commissioners for regulating the borders of New France, which seems necessary, as the Englishmen, taking advantage of the kindness of the Frenchmen and the Savages in time of peace, establish themselves in numbers, making clear their design of putting themselves in the condition of remaining there in case of war.

Father Rasles, their missionary, has sent to Vaudreuil the principal chiefs of this village, to advise him that the Savages have declared that they did not "like that they" (the Englishmen), would advance so much along the river . . . and that they have advised the Governor of Boston that the Englishmen must retire, etc.

329. — Memoir to serve as an elucidation of the Rights that the Frenchmen have on the property of the Countries of North America. 24 pp., folio, with Seal. Copy made at Quebec, August 1, 1750.

This Memoir was especially for the South part of Acadie, from Pentagouet to Quinibegui River, the Iroquois country, the Hudson Bay, with the places occupied by them and by the English. It was sent to the Court by the Marquis de Denonville, Governor and Lieutenant General for the King in New France.

It goes on to state that the Sieur de Champlain has well discussed this question in his book entitled "Le Voyage de Nouvelle France occidentale, ditte Canada," Paris, 1682, where at the end of the book Champlain makes a dissertation which clearly sets the question. It is entitled "Abrégé des découvertes de la Nouvelle France," etc. Then follows an extract of the work.
